A Strange Incident in a Soldier's Life—Anecdote of Jeff. Davis.
The incident of Lafayette township in this county, relates to the following anecdote: While Jefferson Davis was a Lieut. in the United States Army, he was at Fort Mifflin, Pa., and was a private in the same regiment. The portion of the regiment to which Davis belonged was stationed at the frontier, and was much distressed for the want of subsistence. Being far removed from civilization, it was found necessary that a soldier should be sent to the frontier to get provisions, and the probability was that he would die, to place him at the foot of a tree, chop a limb partially off, and then hang him from it, and then serve the double purpose of hanging him from the sun while he lived, and of making a mark when he was dead.

Industrial School.

Those who have sewing or knitting to do may go to the Industrial School, where they can have it well done, and at reasonable prices, and contribute, likewise, to the support of the numerous and almost helpless family of orphan girls under the care of the Sisters of Charity.

The last four or five years have been very trying. The exorbitant price of every article of prime necessity; the increasing number of destitute orphan children; the various new charities, claiming a share of public attention and funds; and, on the other hand, the increasing number of the poor, who, in order to support their families, have been obliged to leave their homes and seek employment in distant cities.

For this purpose (having sewing and knitting machines) they have been equipped with a "household" in which the larger girls can learn a good trade and contribute to their own support.

The Sisters will be grateful for any kind of work, such as coats, vests, pants, underwear of every description, knitting of all kinds, etc. They feel confident that the work and prices will give satisfaction to all who will call on them at St. Vincent's Orphan Asylum, Jefferson, above Wessel street.

City Court of Louisville.

Court met promptly at nine o'clock, S. A. Atchison, Judge pro tem, being on the bench.

Dan, Carrigan and Richard Anderson, destroying the property of Belle Burdine, discharged. Belle Burdine had a peace warrant against the above parties, which was dismissed.

Joe Jacobs, assaulting August Bahlert, bail in $100 to answer.

Carry A. Gill, disorderly conduct; discharged.

Ann Brown was found stretched out in alley making the night noise with her yells; she was let off upon a promise to leave.

Alloy Ward got full of "lightning," and defied the officers to arrest her, and they did it; she was fined $5.

Estate Connolly, stealing clothing from Mrs. Dupuy; discharged.

John McNally, assaulting John A. Mendel with intent to kill; continued until the 24th, and bail fixed in $500.

INCENDIARIES AT WORK—THE FIRE YESTERDAY MORNING. At a quarter before four o'clock yesterday morning an alarm of fire was sounded from the box No. 61, at the corner of Eleventh and Jefferson streets, which was caused by the tearing of smoke from the basket and top shop of Andrew Fritz, on the north side of Market street, between Eleventh and Twelfth.

The fire was caused by a candle discovered in time, and the flames were extinguished before any damage was done. The loss of Mr. Fritz, by fire and water, will amount to about $250, which is covered by insurance in the Western Insurance Company. The building, a three-story brick, the property of Dr. J. R. Bettison, was very slightly damaged.

When the fire was first discovered the front door being open, and the doors of the hatchway were also open, showing conclusively that some person had entered the house through the cellar door, and, going up through the hatchway, had applied the match. Everything went to show that the fire was the work of an incendiary, and our citizens cannot be too careful in watching their premises and guarding against the incendiary.

Recovery of a Drowned Body. We have mentioned the drowning of Patrick King off the steamer General Lytle, lying at the night wharf, on Wednesday afternoon. His corpse was recovered by the crew of the steamer, and was taken to the morgue.

Edward Lee, immediately after the unfortunate occurrence, took steps to secure the body. Providing large grapples, hooks, he dragged the river right and left, and yesterday morning he recovered the body of the drowned man.

Coroner Dick Moore forwarded the remains to Cincinnati by yesterday's mail.

INQUEST No. 129—Held at the foot of Ballist street, in the city of Louisville, December 18th, 1897, on the body of Patrick King, aged thirty-three years, a citizen of Cincinnati, who came to his death by accidental drowning on Wednesday afternoon, December 16th, at 5 o'clock.

Scene in Jail—An Amusing Scene in the City Court.

We mentioned some time since that upon motion of Mr. Reesor, City Attorney, a rule had been issued against the Mayor, Judge of the County Court and the members of the County Levy Court to show cause why the county jail building, or the outside walls of the same, which are in a dangerous condition, should not be torn down. Judge Hoke yesterday morning appeared in the City Court, and, acknowledging that the rule was correct, asked that the rule be enforced. He further asked for an order that the outsiders in court be demolished at once in order to demolish the walls of the old prison. The remarks of Judge Hoke created some merriment, and for a time quite an amusing scene occurred, all that were present at once volunteering to assist in the work, and some of them moving out towards the jail, the rule being enforced.

JEFFERSONVILLE ITEMS.

THURSDAY, DEC. 19. (Reported for the Louisville Democrat.)

It will be remembered that, on this morning's Democrat, we gave an account of a fire which originated in the stable of Mr. George W. Ewing and communicated to the stables adjoining, all of which were entirely consumed, and was evidently the work of an incendiary. Yesterday morning the authorities believed that they had sufficient proof to warrant the arrest of Capt. Henry Foster. Accordingly, Capt. Foster was arrested and placed in the city jail, where he remained until today at 1 o'clock p. m. For a long time our city has been infested with a band of incendiaries, and as a matter of consequence, a great many fires have occurred, being committed principally to the destruction of old buildings. As yet, with heavy rewards and all the energy and sagacity of our own police and hired detectives, but little progress has been made towards ferreting out the perpetrators of these outrageous crimes. Great credit is due to the police for their fidelity in relation to the matter, and any intimation of an arrest of an incendiary tends to increase the interest manifested, and therefore long before the hour of retiring to the city to-day the Mayor's office was filled to almost capacity.

THE WELL-KNOWN CHARACTER OF CAPTAIN FOSTER as a high-toned and honorable gentleman produced an additional impetus to the excitement. After some little delay in procuring the necessary witnesses, the case was called on for the prosecution, and Capt. W. W. Gibson, of your city, for the defense, quite an array of witnesses were presented for both sides. The proof was most conclusively in favor of the prisoner, and after a speech by the legal gentleman, Howard opening and Gibson closing, the Mayor discharged the prisoner, amid the deafening applause of the large crowd.

A Ride in the Sowers of Paris

But a few of the Americans who visit Paris know of the opportunity which may be offered them to visit the very extensive sewerage of Paris, and examine its system. Receiving cards of invitation, we stationed ourselves near the tower of St. Jacques, at an iron trap-door, and the party were soon called upon to descend. Knowing of the danger of getting into these dark regions below, we all felt as if we were going to "take a leap in the dark," but what was our surprise to find elegantly fitted up carriages or cars, lighted by four large globe lamps on each corner. These cars contained twelve persons each, and there were five of them, making sixty persons, which is the limit to the number invited at one time. Of course our ride was limited to the large tunnel or main sewer, which was about twenty feet high and fifteen feet wide. The cars run on a six-foot gauge track, and are pushed on a down-grade by two men for each car.

The water sewerage or drain is below, and is from six to eight feet deep, so that small boats can be towed all the way, and has down grade enough to make quite a current. We rode by the train of cars across the Boulevard Sevastopol, to the head of Rue Rivoli, alongside of the palace and Tuilleries gardens, and the water was about a foot more than three miles, where we disembarked into boats and sailed under the whole length of Rue Rivoli, coming out by the side of the Church of the Madeleine. All along this main channel, are openings or trap-doors, covered with gratings at the head of each cross street, which are marked by the names of the streets on the side of the tunnel; by this means complete ventilation is secured. On the top of the tunnel are two large iron pipes, in which pass through the fresh water supply for the city, one from the aqueduct, and artesian wells, the other from the water pumped up from the river Seine.

There are also three lines of telegraph wires enclosed in lead pipes. It is well known that these great sewers are built for double purpose, and one is for the underground transportation of troops in the time of an insurrection or war. By this means, Napoleon can transport, secretly, troops from one part of the city to the other, suddenly appearing from the ground at almost any point. The telegraph wires would also be serviceable on such occasions. Besides this navigable sewer, which is fitted up especially for pleasure trips, there are smaller sewers running under twenty-five of the principal streets, and the whole length of the sewerage of Paris, large and small, including that under construction, I was informed, is over 300 miles in length, and by these means the drainage of Paris is effected on a magnificent scale, and far surpasses the sewerage of London, of ancient Babel, or Cor Cleland Herald.

Silvers of Thought by Josh Billings.
The heart of a true friend is like a mirror; if you look into it you see yourself there.
Wisdom that don't make us happier isn't worth having.
I am a dreadful fond melody; and a laugh with a bigger lung than I can knock more sense out of me in one minute, than I can get back in two weeks.
It is a good plan to know many people, but few let few know you.
I have no more respect for those who cater to my imagination, than I have for the man who just invented ginger-pop.

I never knew a man of much wisdom who could sing a song well, or play a fiddle.
I don't care how much a man talks, if he says it in a few words.
Reverend makes us miserable, it is just so with punishments. When I was a boy I had rather be licked than twice as well be postponed one.
There is one thing certain; reason is not a man master of the passions, it is this is probably so, the man must be a phool who aint his or herself.
I think it reduces the stomach ake to a better, so I think it lessens any kinds of anguish, just as it does sin, by ownin' it.

We are willing to pay more for being amused than instructed.
How many folks do you suppose that in this world, who are satisfied with things as far as they get? Not more than a few I'll bet. This looks rather stupid for the rest of the tribe.
There ain't no general rule for happiness. A man has to be measured for his happiness, just as he does for his boots, and even then he don't always get a good fit.
Joy will make a man change ends quicker than sorrow.
If a young man can't find anything else he is fit for, I like to see him carry a gold headed cane.
The top rounds up a ladder are always the most dangerous.
I believe in final salvation for men but I want the privilege of picking the men.

Here is just the difference between a success and a failure; it is an inch. It is a grade dead easier test nature than true equal her—so it is easier to be an egg test much than just enough.
Sowing for Others to Reap.
Sitting here with the twilight shadows gathering around me, looking out beyond the maples at the wheat field with its beautiful green, waving in the evening air, I can't think of him who later autumn scattered the seed, little dreaming that when the harvest time should come other hands would reap the golden grain, and his be folded still and cold in the earth, and the seed would be sown. But the father's work is ended; he has sown that others may reap. It is not ever thus with life. We plant, we build, we lay our plans, but how seldom do we realize their entire fulfillment. Yet we are not willing to vainly sow the seed, after we who will reap the benefit of our work, even as we have reaped the harvests planted by those who have gone before us.

Each day we are sowing. We scatter words, sometimes of love and wisdom which take root in the heart of a fellow being and spring up to bring forth golden fruit. On times our unkind words rankle in the bosom of another, causing weeds to grow where might have been flowers. The parent scatters in the heart of childhood the seeds which are to bring forth good or evil, the fruits of which are to tell in the coming harvest of life.

How great the responsibility of sowing for others to reap—how necessary that the seed we scatter be pure and free from tares, that when the Master calls, we can go hence rejoicing, to reap the golden fruits he has prepared for the faithful beyond the River of Death.—Moore's Rural New Yorker.
